

WHY SCHOOL CHOICE WILL NOT FIX THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

There are two institutions that control how teachers are produced: The colleges of education (where teachers are trained) and the state boards of education (which dictates teachers licensure standards).

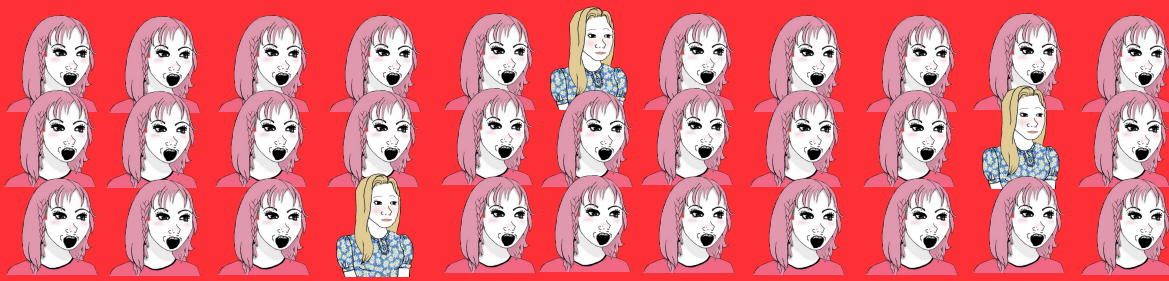

In order to become licensed to be a teacher, the state boards of education require that teachers attend an accredited university, where the majority of professors have integrated woke ideology into the curriculum. Colleges are where the teacher staffing pool is corrupted.

Students go in...and activists come out.

For every one great teacher who makes it out of the colleges of education without indoctrination into the far left progressive ideology, there are nine who are woke.

This is the teacher staffing pool that EVERY school hires from.

School choice gives families the option of which school to attend... but it does not change the make up of the pool of teachers those schools can hire to teach.

And because of how corrupt the teacher staffing pool is, if we got rid of every woke teacher today, there would be no one to replace them with.

Getting rid of bad teachers does not create more good teachers.

Creating a new teacher staffing pool will take at least two generations.

School choice will not fix the public schools because it will not fix the teacher staffing pool. It is an intermediate step, not a solution.
